The theme of the congress was "Shaping the Future of Association Research Through Theory, Method, and Practice." The congress explored the ways in which theory, method, and practice can be used to advance our understanding of associations and their impact on the world.

The congress featured a keynote address by Dr. Mary O'Connell, the Director of the Centre for Social Innovation at Trinity College Dublin. Dr. O'Connell spoke about the importance of associations in promoting social innovation and change.

The congress also featured a number of invited paper sessions, panel discussions, and workshops on a wide range of topics related to association research. These topics included:

- * The role of associations in civil society
- * The impact of associations on economic development
- * The governance and management of associations
- * The measurement and evaluation of association performance
- * The use of technology in association research

The congress was a success, and it provided a valuable opportunity for scholars, practitioners, and policymakers to come together and share their research and ideas. The proceedings of the congress will be published in a special issue of the journal "Association Management."
